About Lewis-Burke

• Founded in 1992; located in Washington, DC
• In 2018, twenty-eight policy experts with range of expertise/backgrounds allow multi-layered issue teams with deep expertise in agencies and scientific/higher education areas
• Support federal relations activities to develop and implement federal strategies to pursue, shape, and create new sources of funding to increase and diversify research portfolio
• Able to engage on multiple levels:
  - Individual faculty (including early career faculty)
  - Teams of faculty
  - Associate Deans for Research
  - Deans and Center Directors
  - University leadership and campus-wide priorities/activities
Federal Opportunities and Landscape

African Studies

• Landscape
  - While the Administration has indicated a lack of interest in substantive international engagement, there is support for national security initiatives (i.e. increased and continued involvement in Africa by China)

• Federal Opportunities
  - ED Title VI International and Foreign Language Education funding opportunities
  - Foreign Language and Area Studies Fellowships Program (FLAS), National Resource Centers (NRC) Program, Undergraduate International Studies and Foreign Language Program (UISFL)
  - National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) Division of Research awards
  - Department of State Bureau Of Educational And Cultural Affairs grants

www.lewis-burke.com
Federal Opportunities and Landscape

Indigenous Arts and Knowledge

• Landscape
  - While the Administration has proposed elimination of federal funding for many art initiatives (NEH, NEA, etc), Congress has rejected these cuts.

• Federal Opportunities
  - National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) Division of Research awards
  - National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) (funding is available for projects)
  - Smithsonian Opportunities for Research and Study (SORS)